From the Director's Desk

There are those who would like to tear down our work; to tell us that we are somehow forcing our views on those clients who come in our front door looking for answers. We both know that nothing could be further from the truth.

Many of our detractors—on the surface at least—see our faith as little more than a crutch; a non-starter when it comes to reaching out to those we see.

At the same time however, many of those same people are often impressed with the teachings of Jesus Christ. It's an amazing dynamic and a key focus on why we do what we do.

When detractors question us, we have a simple answer that begins with a question: "When faced with a young woman with an unplanned pregnancy, what would Jesus do?"

Would Jesus pull together his disciples and take up a collection for this woman so she could make an appointment at a local abortion clinic? Or would Jesus take her by the hand and say, "I'll walk with you through this. I'll be here with you, and I won't let you go."?

Here at the Pregnancy Support Center, our answer is the latter. To the most hardened cynic, this could come across as a "religious answer." But to those with a sense of true inquiry, this truth is eye-opening.

Asking "What would Jesus do?" is not a copout; and certainly not an empty phrase.

Asking this question reminds us that we are about building a relationship, and releasing hope into the lives of those we see. These two form a powerful combination that touches hearts and, in the end, changes lives.

So if anyone wants to know our motivation, we ask: What would Jesus do?
